Locsin: May polls flawed

He won't recommend automation in 2013

BAD REVIEW Outgoing Makati Rep. Teodoro Locsin Jr. gestures during a hearing of the House committee on suffrage and electoral reforms.

By Leila B. Salaverria

MAKATI REP. TEODORO LOCSIN YESTERDAY admitted to being mistaken in his rosy outlook of electronic elections, saying that he was against employing the automated system used on May 10 in future electoral exercises unless loopholes were plugged.

Locsin is the chair of the House committee on suffrage and electoral reforms, which on Sunday released a report based on its hearings that painted a far from ideal picture of the recently concluded automated elections.

The hearings took up the complaints of local candidates who claimed that they lost because of electoral fraud.

Interviewed over ABS-CBN News Channel (ANC), Locsin said yesterday that cheating done under the automated system could be untraceable, unlike in manual elections where money and hard work could uncover a fake ballot.

Despite Locsin's statements, others stuck to their championing of the automated election system.

TEARFUL GOODBYE An emotional Leila de Lima, chair of the Commission on Human Rights, says goodbye to her staff on Monday. De Lima will assume the post of justice secretary under the incoming Aquino administration.

16 nations sending top-level delegations

By Jerome Aning and Cynthia D. Balana

EAST TIMORESE PRESIDENT Jose Ramos-Horta arrived in Manila last night for the inauguration tomorrow of President-elect Benigno Aquino III at Rizal Park. Fifteen other countries are sending high-level delegations to the event.

"It's my pleasure and honor to be here. I attended a few months ago the funeral of his mother Cory whom I greatly admire and I couldn't miss the inauguration of her son as president," Ramos-Horta told reporters at the Ninoy Aquino International Airport.

Japan is dispatching its foreign minister, Osamu Fujimura, for the event.

In a statement released by the Japanese Embassy, Fujimura said he hoped that the strategic partnership between the two countries would be further enhanced with the new administration. It said the two countries shared values such as freedom, democracy and respect for human rights.

Noy swamped with unsolicited advice

WATCH YOUR BACK; DON'T repeat your mom's mistakes; don't lie about the economy and be careful with Frog.

Two days before his oath-taking, President-elect Benigno "Noynoy" Aquino III continues to be swamped with all sorts of unsolicited advice, including suggestions on how to deal with critics, "charlatans," his unpopular predecessor, and two controversial senators.

Goodbye cracks shell of tough CHR chair

By Nikko Dizon

THE TOUGH, FIRM EXTERIOR finally collapsed and dissolved into tears.

But, bidding goodbye to her fellow workers at the Commission on Human Rights (CHR), Leila de Lima made one thing clear—the fire in her would not be quelled even in her job as justice secretary in the incoming Aquino administration, a designation she declined to confirm publicly but described as an "open secret."

"Yes, I am still expected to exhibit a high sense of independence, although there will be some adjustments because as a member of the official family I will just be an alter ego of the President," De Lima said at a news conference.

GOOD NEWS FOR GC LOVERS.

You may now hold on to those gift certificates (GCs) for as long as you like after the Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) signed a memorandum dated June 25 lifting restrictions on when they are supposed to be used.

As a result, there will no longer be any expiration period for GCs except for those issued as part of a promotion, Trade Undersecretary Zenaida Maglaya said yesterday.

Textbook crusader cautions DepEd

By Philip C. Tubeza

A SELF-STYLED CRUSADER against "sick books" yesterday assailed as "dangerous" a proposal by the Department of Education (DepEd) that it be allowed again to commission and publish textbooks for public schools.

Antonio Calipjo-Go, academic supervisor of Marian School of Quezon City, said that the DepEd should instead increase the textbook price to get more publishers interested in bidding out a textbook project and then "haggle" with them for the best manuscript.

"It would be dangerous for the DepEd to publish and commission its own books because there would be no involvement or input from outside. There would be no check and balance there," Go said in an interview.

"That is a very self-serving

De Lima says witness' killing has chilling effect

By Nikko Dizon, Jeannette I. Andrade and Marlon Ramos

OUTGOING COMMISSION ON Human Rights (CHR) Chair Leila de Lima yesterday warned that the killing of a key witness to the Maguindanao massacre—a man who sported six different names—would produce a "chilling effect" on others who might want to come out and tell what they knew of the carnage.

De Lima aired the warning as a private lawyer revealed that two persons had already come forward and given the Criminal Investigation and Detection Group (CIDG) eyewitness ac-

World leaders agree to cut budget deficits by 2013

TORONTO—WORLD LEADERS, shaken by the European debt crisis but wary of ending stimulus programs, pledged on Sunday to use flexibility in slashing by half government deficits in the most industrialized nations by 2013.

The leaders generally agreed to cut spending and raise taxes despite warnings from US President Barack Obama and others that too much austerity too quickly could choke off the global recovery.

"Serious challenges remain," they cautioned in a closing statement.

"While growth is returning, the recovery is uneven and fragile, unemployment in many countries remains at unacceptable levels and the social impact of the crisis is still widely felt," the leaders said in the document issued by the Group of 20 (G-20) major industrial and developing nations.

Summit participants navigated a careful course between Obama, with his emphasis on growth, and fellow leaders such as German Chancellor Angela Merkel who advocated spending cuts and even tax increases.

French President Nicolas Sarkozy said: "I believe that the viewpoints came together, including with President Obama."

Obama said that in the short run, it was important to maintain stimulus spending in countries that could afford it. "We can't all rush to the exits at the

"We, Offshoring, Inc, were raided by the local enforcement authorities for the illegal use of unlicensed software from Adobe Systems Incorporated. The use of unlicensed software was caused by poor management of our software inventory, deployment and control, and we apologize to Adobe.

A yoga teacher and practitioner gets detailed instructions from her guru—directions that inevitably apply to everyday life

LINES, CIRCLES, ANGLES and spaces—the geometry of the yogic spiritual path is often described in linear terms as a road, a journey giving us a visual image of distance, length, curves, bends, gradual ascents, sharp descents and flat planes.
